

Federal Direct Student Loan Acceptance/Decline 2021-22

Your financial aid includes an offer for a Federal Direct Student Loan awarded through the Department of Education. The amounts offered are the maximum amounts you are currently eligible to receive under the Federal Direct Student Loan Program for the 2021-22 academic year. Student loans may not cover your entire net cost at the university. We encourage you to reduce your debt burden by using personal income and/or savings as much as possible, and only borrowing to cover your necessary education-related expenses.

What is a federal student loan?

Federal loans are borrowed funds that you must repay with interest. A federal student loan allows students and their parents to borrow money to help pay for college through loan programs supported by the federal government. They have low interest rates and offer flexible repayment terms, benefits, and options.

Why are federal student loans a better option for paying for college?

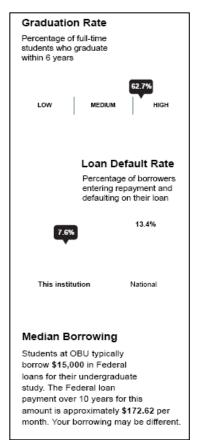

Federal student loans offer borrowers many benefits not typically found in private loans. These include low fixed interest rates, income-based repayment plans, and cancellations for certain employment, and deferment (postponement) options, including deferment of loan payments when a student returns to school. Also, private loans usually require a credit check. For these reasons, students and parents should always exhaust federal student loan options before considering a private loan. #### Repaying your Direct Subsidized or Unsubsidized Loan

- After you stop attending school at least half time, a 6-month grace period begins. You receive only one grace period per loan.
- Repayment begins after the grace period ends, with your first payment usually due 45-60 days later.
- The maximum repayment period is 10 years.
- Payments are expected each month.
- The minimum monthly payment is $50, but this amount may be higher depending on your loan balance.
- You may prepay your loan at any time without penalty. Prepayment may substantially reduce the amount of interest you pay.
