GRE, Praxis Practice free!

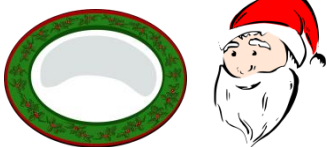

Last month's trivia contest winner is..... Bryson Clegg!

He made a wild guess that the faculty/staff person who dislikes chocolate and is a serious practitioner of yoga is none other than Dr. Justin Isenhour!

NEW TRIVIA QUESTION!

Who among your music faculty/staff used to work in a paper plate factory, was a drive-through bank teller, AND dressed up as Santa Claus for the bank?

Dear Music Majors,

Many of you plan to go to graduate school or work in education when you graduate. Did you know that through the main library website, you have access to many free practice tests for graduate school admission and the teaching profession? Well, you do! At your fingertips, too, courtesy of OBU library. When you create an account for yourself (for free!) on the Learning Express Library website, it keeps up with your scores and progress. You can choose to take the tests in one of two modes – Realistic (so it is timed, just like when you really take the test) or Learning, in which you take all the time you need and get feedback right away on what you missed and what the right answers are. In addition to practice tests, the site offers eBooks aimed at helping you master skills specific to the tests. The website has a zillion career, college, and grad school prep resources, so it is sprawling and hard to navigate. Do not be put off, ask a librarian for assistance!

Here is a link to the GRE prep resources And here is a link to the core practice tests for the Praxis Practice. Unfortunately, they do not offer practice tests in the subject area of music, but the core practice tests should be useful as you have to take that part, too.

Teaching

Any of the librarians would be happy to help you make use of this helpful, free resource.
